

KLIM MENT

Klimawandel und mentale Gesundheit Studierender

30 July 2025

Dear student,

As part of the KLIM MENT project, we are currently developing solutions to help students better cope with any mental stress caused by climate change.

If climate change is something that concerns you, or if you even feel stressed or overwhelmed by it, we would be very grateful if you could support us in developing these measures in focus groups together with other students. This is the best way for us to develop measures that are truly tailored to the needs of you, the students.

You can easily register for the focus group using this online form.

A focus group meeting will take place online at the beginning of your winter semester 25/26 or during the preceding lecture-free period (duration max. two hours). Select the time slots that suit you best in the registration form. We will then try to find a date that suits everyone the best possible. If there are enough registrations from the same university, the focus group could also take place in person.

We look forward to working with you!

Best regards from the KLIM MENT project team
